- Research Experience
  - My research experience includes the research and analysis used to complete my Doctoral dissertation, Title IX Investigative Training, and the Risk of Litigation to Institutions of Higher Education. This experience involved techniques including the creation of single source and multiple source documents; the research, and critical analysis necessary to compile a dissertation length and quality document; the research methods and design techniques used in statistical data and applicable measurement scales applicable to scholarly work; the concepts facilitating the preparation of a literature review, including searching for sources, reading and note-taking strategies, organizing information, and structuring a literature review; the creation of the methodology chapter and the conclusion of the proposal phase; and analysis of the efficacy for using basic interpretive qualitative studies, mixed methods studies, and hypothesis driven quantitative studies.
